Eva M. Düsterhöft

Project Manager Dairy
NIZO

Eva Düsterhöft, PhD, is Senior Project Manager at NIZO food research, which she joined in 1998. Trained as food technologist with a focus on biochemistry, enzymology/fermented foods, and after a start of her career in R&D in pet food and bakery ingredients industry, at NIZO she moved into the dairy area and became an inspired (prize-winning) cheese expert. She leads large multidisciplinary contract research projects, in bilateral setting or multi-client consortia. The main focus of her work is cheese technology and – functionality, and the relation between rawmaterials, ingredients and processing with the sensory, physical and biochemical properties of cheese.

Submission Lead Time:

Your event coordinator will specify the deadline for material delivery in due time.

Important note about the moderator:

The moderator plays the role of animator: he introduces the subject, the speakers, makes the transitions between different parts of the presentation, reads the questions to the speaker(s) during the Q&A session... This role is not mandatory but recommended as it makes the presentation more lively and dynamic. We, at William Reed, do NOT provide any moderator for our clients' webinars, so please make sure that someone from your company can take over this role before deciding to have one.
